MOTION IN LIMINE TO EXCLUDE

ANY REFERENCE TO ANY CRIMINAL CHARGES

OR TO THE REASON FOR PLAINTIFF'S U.S.M.C. EXPERIENCE

OR ITS AFTER EFFECTS

Now comes the plaintiff and moves this Honorable Court order that the defendants be barred from making any reference to any arrest or criminal charge, as the plaintiff has never been convicted of any crime and the mention of criminal charges long in the past, .for which the plaintiff was not convicted, is highly prejudicial and of no probative value.

Similarly, the plaintiff requests this Honorable Court order that the defendants be barred from making any reference to the horrible circumstances that led to the plaintiff's departure from the United States Marines or any reference to the effects this event had or may have had. None of this is relevant to the present issues in dispute: whether defendant Sauro placed the defendant in danger by ordering her to push her car in the snow. On the other hand, the issues of what happened to her 40 years ago is highly embarrassing and intrusive to any woman.
